Please confirm your understanding that:

1. At ONCAMPUS, we recognise that English may not be your first language. Our assessments are designed to allow you to achieve while continuing to develop your academic English skills. We expect all submitted work to be your own words (apart from in-text quotations), written in a style that reflects your English language level.
2. At any time, you may be asked to attend an interview with at least two members of academic staff to discuss the content of your submitted coursework. It is likely that one interviewer will be the Centre Head or Deputy Centre Head. Interviews may be requested as part of a random check, or if there is suspicion that an academic offence has been committed. We expect all students to be able to discuss and/or explain the main ideas and vocabulary used in submitted coursework.
3. It is your responsibility to read the programme handbook, including the policy on late submission, and information on available support if you are finding your studies difficult.
4. If you are unsure about any part of your coursework, you must ask your tutors for help before the submission deadline.

By attaching this sheet, you confirm that that you understand and accept all of the information above. You understand that all submitted coursework must include this coursework submission sheet, and that submissions without the sheet included will be rejected.

1. Requirement Analysis

1.1. Purpose

The purpose of designing and developing the front-end of a travel blog website is to:

- Provide a hands-on experience with HTML, CSS, and JavaScript
- Design a user-friendly website which works seamlessly
- Design a website that provides the user with sufficient information about travel and tourism
- Design a simple layout of a website easier for the users to get a hang of
- Use problem-solving and creative skills to add special effects in the layout of the simple website to make it eye-catching

1.2. Objectives

The objectives of designing a travel blog website are:

- To create responsive and engaging website for the users
- To create a detailed blog webpage that provides user what they require
- To create a website which can help users to interact with the owner of the blog page and get to know more about him
- To learn to document the website and include all the intricate details of the website in its documentation

1.3. Target Audience

The Tourly website has two main target audience:

- Users/ general audience: Users who are exploring the webpage and getting benefitted from what the website offers.
- Owner: The owner who created the website and can edit, update, and make changes to the website or its contents anytime. They have access to its details that is not visible to the normal users.

1.4. Significance of the Task

This task is quite significant as it provides an opportunity to the blogger to express themselves and share their experiences with evidence via sharing their clips. This would make the audience feel as if they are travelling with the blogger on their journey too. This is significant in many ways as the tourists can also benefit from it, they can plan their journey accordingly. This creates a whole separate world for the wanderers to connect and plan accordingly.

Output

- GREECE SANTORINI: An image of blue domes against a bright sky. The card includes a five-star rating icon and a detailed description: 'Santorini, Greece, is a picturesque island located in the southern Aegean Sea, part of the Cyclades archipelago. Famous for its stunning sunsets, iconic white-washed buildings, and vibrant blue-domed churches.'
- TURKIYE ISTANBUL: An image of a mosque under a cloudy sky. The card includes a five-star rating icon and a detailed description: 'Istanbul is a vibrant metropolis that straddles Europe and Asia across the Bosphorus Strait, blending rich history with modern dynamism. Istanbul is a treasure of historical landmarks, including the Hagia Sophia, Topkapi Palace, and the Blue Mosque.'
- FRANCE PARIS: An image of the Eiffel Tower framed by autumn leaves. The card includes a five-star rating icon and a detailed description: 'Paris, France, often referred to as "The City of Light," is renowned for its timeless elegance, rich cultural heritage, and romantic ambiance. As the capital of France, Paris is a global center for art, fashion, gastronomy, and history.'

3.2. Unit Testing

Unit Testing is a type of testing that helps ensure that each option, feature, button, and link is working as it is supposed to work. This is done to ensure the seamless flow of the website. Different sections of the website will be tested under this heading.

3.2.1. Header Section

The header section was tested multiple times. All the buttons were clicked multiple times to ensure its functionality.

The header section consists of learn more, explore, and social buttons. The learn more button is supposed to redirect towards the popular section, the explore button is supposed to redirect towards the gallery section of the webpage. The social links are supposed to redirect towards Facebook, twitter, and YouTube pages respectively. There is a contact number link too which is supposed to redirect towards the phone book or required app accordingly.

There are navigation links in the header section which are supposed to redirect towards the respective section on the webpage.

While unit testing all these links and buttons were tested and no errors were encountered during this. The transition towards the respective links and pages was smooth without any obstacle.

3.2.2. Popular Section

The popular destination section of the webpage demonstrates the blog of the 3 main destinations. Each destination is represented in a card respectively. Each card contains 2 links that directs to a specific YouTube video link that presents a detailed view of that particular destination. In total there are 6 links and their functionality is to redirect towards a YouTube video. These links are displayed once the names of the destinations are clicked.

During unit testing, these links seemed to work perfectly well and are seamlessly redirecting towards the respective YouTube video.

3.2.3. Gallery Section

There are no specific links in the gallery section specifically but since the gallery section comes in the main page it utilises the same navigation structure as every section and makes use of the same links as every other section.

3.2.4. Contact Section

The contact section contains a contact us button which leads to another page containing the contact form. This contact form is supposed to record responses and send it to the author's email address that is linked to the contact form.

During unit testing few bugs were fixed and then the connections ran smoothly.

3.2.5. Footer Section

The footer section contains contact links, subscription inputs, and the back to top button. The contact links are phone number and email address of the author's organization. The phone number link is supposed to redirect towards the respective app and the email link should open the email app and draft email. The back to top button is supposed to take the users or the author back to the very top of the webpage from where they started browsing. During unit testing all of this was tested multiple times and they work perfectly.

3.2.6. About Page

The about page has 5 external links, 3 buttons, and 5 navigation links. The 5 external links consists of social links (Facebook, Twitter, and YouTube), phone number, and email address. These links are supposed to redirect the user towards respective pages or apps. The three buttons are the "learn more", "subscribe", and "back-to-top" buttons. These are supposed to provide additional info, subscription to newsletters, and assistance to the users. During unit testing all of these options were checked thoroughly and no bugs were reported during the testing.

3.2.7. Destination Page

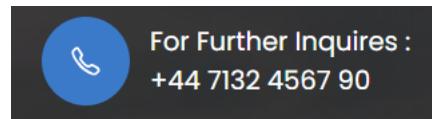

The destination page has 4 buttons, 8 external links, and 5 navigation links. The 4 buttons include "Learn More", "More info!", "subscribe", and "back-to-top" buttons. They work perfectly well as they are supposed to. The 8 external links include the phone number, email address, and the YouTube video links that are there in the destination names. The 5-navigation links redirect towards respective pages if accessed via the webpages. If accessing the webpages via the main (home) page, the navigation items redirect towards the sections that are there on the home page. Those sections contain buttons or links that redirect towards respective pages.

3.2.8. Contact Page

The contact page has 4 external links, 1 button, and 5 navigation links. The 4 external links consists of social links (Facebook, Twitter, and YouTube) and phone number. These links are supposed to redirect the user towards respective pages or apps. The single button is for the “learn more” option which provides additional info to the users regarding the page. During unit testing all of these options were tested thoroughly and no bugs were reported during the testing.

3.3. Integration Testing

Integration testing checks how well the software is connected to each other and how they work together. It checks the connection and how well does the link or button redirects to its respective page.

3.4. System Testing

The main page has 11 external links. Social links connect the users on social media. The three social links include the Facebook, twitter, and YouTube links. The connection links provide the users with the phone number and the email address of the blogger. Moreover, in the popular destination section there are total 6 links which redirect towards the respective YouTube videos of the destinations and provide the users with more information regarding the destinations.

The three social links are there at the top of the webpage in the header section so that the users can find the socials of the blogger easily and can benefit from what it offers. The 2 contact links which is the phone number of the blogger and the email address are there in the footer section of the website's main page for the users to easily contact the blogger with any query. The phone number is provided at the top of the main page's header too. This is to make it easier for the users contact the blogger's organisation.

The main page has 5 navigation links and the work perfectly fine as they point towards their respective section effectively. The contact page also has 5 navigation links in its header and they function well.

The main page has 6 buttons. 2 learn more buttons, 1 Explore button, 1 contact us button in the contact section, 1 subscribe button, and 1 Back to top button in the footer section of the main page. They all work perfectly fine too.

The contact page is accessed via the contact section in the main page. It has a contact us button which when clicked redirects towards the contact page which contains the contact us form for the users to fill in so that they can ask anything from the blogger or they can even send details in order to collaborate with the blogger. The submit button in that form sends the response to the bloggers email address and MS Office forms too. The blogger can also keep a track of all the responses and can create an excel file of all the responses so that they can access it later for information purpose.

System testing was done to ensure everything works perfectly well together as a system and fortunately it actually did. The website fulfilled the user's requirement and was delivered to the user on time with all the bugs fixed.

The destination page has 4 buttons, 8 external links, and 5 navigation links. The 4 buttons include "Learn More", "More info!", "subscribe", and "back-to-top" buttons. They work perfectly well as they are supposed to. The 8 external links include the phone number, email address, and the YouTube video links that are there in the destination names. The 5-navigation links redirect towards respective pages if accessed via the webpages. If accessing the webpages via the main (home) page, the navigation items redirect towards the sections that are there on the home page. Those sections contain buttons or links that redirect towards respective pages.

The pop-up feature was created to assist as it helped them to know more about the webpages. The pop-up option provides more info about the webpages which makes the website more interactive.

4.2. Reflection, Critical Feedback, & Review

The website consists of 5 navigation items in the navigation panel. It consists of 3 social links and 2 contact links for the users to experience smooth and seamless transition from one section to the other without any difficulty. The layout is designed to be as simple as possible for the users so that they find the layout easy to understand and they find the features or options of the website to be easily accessible.

The three social links are there at the top of the webpage in the header section so that the users can find the socials of the blogger easily and can benefit from what it offers. The 2 contact links which is the phone number of the blogger and the email address are there in the footer section of the website's main page for the users to easily contact the blogger with any query. The phone number is provided at the top of the main page's header too. This is to make it easier for the users contact the blogger's organisation.

The 5 navigation items in the navigation panel of the main page point towards their respective section effectively making it easier for the users to navigate around. This makes the layout of the website simpler and easier to understand.

Moreover, for user's assistance there is a back to top button at the very end of the webpage on the bottom-right corner of the footer section. This is to provide assistance to the users to just go back to the top of the page and continue exploring. This way they won't have to swipe or scroll all the way back up to the header section. Just one click would do the required work.

However, users found the navigation structure difficult to get hang of as in the main page the navigation structures were working perfectly fine but when it comes to the contact page, all the navigation items point towards the main page and from there again the user has to select the navigation item and go to the respective section. This problem arises due to the poor linking of the navigation items to their respective sections. This bug was quite difficult to fix and is still under consideration by the developer team.

The navigation structure provides detailed option of contact information, the users find the contact buttons and social links to be easily accessible and were quite impressed by the layout of the website as it connects them directly to the blogger.

Users encountered linker errors. When the users were trying to navigate around the website, some of the links were not redirecting to respective link or page properly. This was due to the inker error in the code. This bug was later fixed and the users were satisfied with the results.

For the portfolio, time management issue with the portfolio deadline was encountered. For this, reallocation of the tasks was done and the tasks were assigned new durations to finish the project on time to fulfil the user's expectation. The website along with the documentation and codes fulfilled the user's requirement and was delivered to the user on time with all the bugs fixed.

The users found the pop-up feature to be assisting as it helped them to know more about the webpages. The pop-up option provides more info about the webpages which makes the website more interactive.

The website also makes use of the pop-up button which is there to assist its users to get to know more about the webpages. An example is shown below:
